

Nutrition for Cancer Care and Prevention

Eating well when you have cancer means eating enough to prevent weight loss and keep your strength up. Cancer and cancer treatments can make it harder for your body to get what it needs from the food you eat.

A registered dietitian is a part of the team of health professionals that can help work with you, your family, and the rest of your medical team to support your dietary needs during and after cancer treatment and recovery.

This 60 - minute workshop is facilitated by a qualified registered dietitian and is accessible virtually as well as in-person at our Irvine and Anaheim Medical Center campuses.
